

October 31st

On this day in...

2003: This was the last day that no measurable rain fell in San Diego for 181 consecutive days. This second longest dry streak on record began on 5/3.

1987: Heavy rain hit Mt. Wilson with 3.14 inches in 24 hours. Numerous mudslides occurred in the area. Three died and 25 were injured in weather-related auto accidents. 2.34 inches fell in Mt. Laguna, 1.28 inches in Alpine, and 1.10 inches in El Cajon causing minor flooding problems.

1935: It was 34° in Santa Ana, the lowest temperature on record for October. This also occurred on 10/21/1949 and 10/12/1924.